

Transylvania County Schools District CDM Team

Tasked with policy implementation, this team develops the district-wide procedures and policies to implement CDM most effectively in the school district, including an appeal process for families and any local testing procedures needed. Topics for discussion and decision-making include the communication plan, CDM timeline, student documentation and assessment protocols, structure and practices of School CDM committees, family appeals process, and whether CDM will be offered for courses not currently taught in a student's base school. This team will also guide the development and/or selection of tests (as applicable), artifacts, and rubrics for each course and subject area for which CDM is offered. The team will bring content experts together to determine these multi-phase assessment tools.

School CDM Teams

Composed of 3-5 members who represent various perspectives of personnel, school-based teams conduct the work of leading students through the CDM process at the school level. This team communicates with the school community about CDM, meets with students/families for advisement and discussion of long-term implications of earning CDM, and leads the overall CDM application process. This team will also meet with students/families after the multi-phase assessment is complete to discuss the outcomes, based on the recommendation of the Student Review Panel.

Student Review Panels

A school-based or district-based team will determine whether a student has met the requirements to earn CDM through the multi-phase assessment. This team shall work with the CDM School Team to facilitate the Phase I Assessment and then focus work on the Phase II Artifact Assessment and any additional performance tasks required. This group of at least three educational experts will review student examinations, student artifacts and presentations to determine whether a student has successfully met the requirements to earn CDM. This Student Review Panel will provide needed data and documentation to the School CDM Team to support effective communication with the student/family. Members will differ depending upon the subject for which a student is attempting to earn credit. In a single school, there may be several different Student Review Panels at any given time for different students.
